"SHABU" (lost Filipino anti-drug PSA; existence unconfirmed; 1990s)

"Fake Doomsday" (lost Filipino doomsday PSA; existence unconfirmed; 1992)

"SHABU", as viewers call it, was a supposed Filipino anti-drug PSA only recalled by eyewitnesses. It is known to be disturbing to viewers due to its content.

Premise

The commercial starts off with a black background and a white human-shaped cutout made out of Styrofoam. The cutout slowly dissolves from a liquid dropping from above, supposedly an acid. After the figure fully dissolves, the word SHABU (the Filipino word for methamphetamine) is shown

This article has been tagged as NSFL due to its discussion of the Holocaust, graphic imagery and other disturbing religious subject matter.

"Fake Doomsday", also known as "Hoax Doomsday" are the names about the biblical end times prophecy, of the beast. It is still unknown who motives, though given the nature of the ad it is likely to be from a fundamentalist Christian group.

Premise

The ad starts with the word "RAPTURE" with a date on the bottom of the
